Garcilasso de la Vega

Beyond Books and Borders Raquel Chang-Rodríguez, 2006 La Florida del Inca (Lisbon, 1605) is a key text in the history and culture of the Americas. In this chronicle, its author, Inca Garcilaso de la Vega, born in Cuzco, the son of an Inca princess and a Spanish conquistador, offers a unique representation of Hernando de Soto's expedition (1539-43) to the vast territory then known as La Florida. The studies collected here analyze the period of early contact in La Florida, study the chronicle of the Cuzcan writer and the works that influenced it, with the objective of affirming its central place in colonial, cultural, and transatlantic studies and its importance in understanding the intertwined history of the Americas. An introduction, a chronology, a general bibliography, and fifty-six images offer a frame for these sections. The various essays are written in a direct manner, and are free of jargon with the aim of attracting both general and academic readers. Raquel Chang-Rodríguez is Distinguished Professor of Hispanic Literature and Culture at the City University of New York.

La Florida Del Inca and the Struggle for Social Equality in Colonial Spanish America Jonathan D. Steigman, 2005-09-25 A cross-disciplinary view of an important De Soto chronicle. Among the early Spanish chroniclers who contributed to popular images of the New World was the Amerindian-Spanish (mestizo) historian and literary writer, El Inca Garcilaso de la Vega (1539-1616). He authored several works, of which La Florida del Inca (1605) stands out as the best because of its unique Amerindian and European perspectives on the De Soto expedition (1539-1543). As the child of an Indian mother and a Spanish father, Garcilaso lived in both worlds--and saw value in each. Hailed throughout Europe for his excellent contemporary Renaissance writing style, his work was characterized as literary art. Garcilaso revealed the emotions, struggles, and conflicts experienced by those who participated in the historic and grandiose adventure in La Florida. Although criticized for some lapses in accuracy in his attempts to paint both the Spaniards and the Amerindians as noble participants in a world-changing event, his work remains the most accessible of all the chronicles. In this volume, Jonathan Steigman explores El Inca's rationale and motivations in writing his chronicle. He suggests that El Inca was trying to influence events by influencing discourse; that he sought to create a discourse of tolerance and agrarianism, rather than the dominant European discourse of intolerance, persecution, and lust for wealth. Although El Inca's purposes went well beyond detailing the facts of De Soto's entrada, his skill as a writer and his dual understanding of the backgrounds of the participants enabled him to paint a more complete picture than most--putting a sympathetic human face on explorers and natives alike.

The Florida of the Inca Garcilaso Vega, 2010-06-28 "Great endurances and deeds were surviving treasures for the soul that marched with DeSoto, and this book is their richest storehouse." -The New York Times Book Review Perhaps the most amazing thing of all about Garcilaso de la Vega's epic account of the De Soto expedition is the fact that, although it is easily the first great classic of American history, it had never before received a complete or otherwise adequate English translation in the 346 years which have elapsed since its publication in Spanish. Now the Inca's thrilling narrative comes into its own in the English-speaking world. Hernando de Soto's expedition for the conquest of North America was the most ambitious ever to brave the perils of the New World. Garcilaso tells in remarkably rich detail of the conquistadors' wanderings over half a continent, of the unbelievable vicissitudes which beset them, of the indigenous people whom they sought to win for King and Church and by whose hands most of them died, of De Soto's death, and of the final pitiful failure of the expedition. "When you regretfully lay aside this extraordinary volume and add it to your shelf of favorite titles, you will appreciate the tremendous adventure into history which you have had." -San Francisco Examiner "A distinguished and beautiful book, greatly translated." -New York Herald Tribune "A marvelous and important adventure story, admirably translated, skillfully edited, and most beautifully printed. It is a sensational first book for the University of Texas Press and should be a best seller in its class." -Herbert E. Bolton, leading authority on Spanish explorations in the Americas

La Florida Del Inca and the Florida of the Others: The Multilingual Afterlives of Garcilaso's Florida Jennifer Marie Forsythe, 2019 This dissertation examines three centuries of French and English translations of Peruvian historian Inca Garcilaso de la Vega's La Florida del Inca (1605), an account of the Hernando de Soto expedition (1539-1544) across present-day Cuba, the southeastern United States, and Mexico. Garcilaso's history stands out from the work of other Renaissance and early modern Hispanophone historians because he devotes more than half his text to narrating the words and actions of the Indigenous people he imagines based on written and oral eyewitness accounts of the expedition from Spanish soldiers. Early French and English translations of this work were printed at nearly four times the rate of Spanish editions, but they have been overlooked partly because they don't conform to contemporary translation conventions and because some translators choose to present their recreations of Garcilaso's text as their own original work. Analyzing the work of the translators, printers, booksellers, engravers, and other scholars and artisans who move Garcilaso's text across spaces and audiences reveals that Garcilaso had a much greater role in shaping perceptions of American people, history, and space in Francophone and Anglophone traditions than has previously been imagined. The dissertation begins with an overview of the geopolitical factors and print cultures that spurred the movement of La Florida del Inca and its translations across early modern and nineteenth-century Atlantic worlds. It then presents detailed case studies of the work of several important translators in the history of La Florida del Inca's Francophone and Anglophone afterlives: Pierre Richelet (1626-1698), Jean-Frédéric Bernard (1680-1744), and Theodore Irving (1809-1880). Taken separately, their translations redefine the parameters of Florida and negotiate relationships of identification, antipathy, and forgetfulness with the European and Indigenous figures described in the source text. Taken together, their translations illuminate alternatives to the omissions and silences imposed on Garcilaso's text during its long reception history and produce invigorated, engaged readings of La Florida del Inca.

A Road Course in Early American Literature Thomas Hallock, 2021-02-23 A Road Course in Early American Literature: Travel and Teaching from Atzlán to Amherst explores a two-part question: what does travel teach us about literature, and how can reading guide us to a deeper understanding of place and identity? Thomas Hallock charts a teacher's journey to answering these questions, framing personal experiences around the continued need for a survey course covering early American literature up to the mid-nineteenth century. Hallock approaches literary study from the overlapping perspectives of pedagogue, scholar, unrepentant tourist, husband, father, friend, and son. Building on Ralph Waldo Emerson's premise that there is "creative reading as well as creative writing," Hallock turns to the vibrant and accessible tradition of American travel writing, employing the form of biblio-memoir to bridge the impasse between public and academic discourse and reintroduce the dynamic field of early American literature to wider audiences. Hallock's own road course begins and ends at the Lowcountry of Georgia and South Carolina, following a circular structure of reflection. He weaves his journey through a wide swath of American literatures and authors: from Native American and African American oral traditions, to Wheatley and Equiano, through Emerson, Poe, and Dickinson, among others. A series of longer, place-oriented narratives explore familiar and lesser-known literary works from the sixteenth-century invasion of Florida through the Mexican War of 1846-1848 and the American Civil War. Shorter chapters bridge the book's central themes—the mapping of cognitive and physical space, our personal stake in reading, the tensions that follow earlier acts of erasure, and the impossibility of ever fully shutting out the past. Exploring complex cultural histories and contemporary landscapes filled with ghosts and new voices, this volume draws inspiration from a tradition of travel, place-oriented, and literature-based works ranging from William Carlos Williams's In the American Grain and Jack Kerouac's On the Road to Alice Walker's In Search of Our Mother's Gardens, Wendy Lesser's Why I Read: The Serious Pleasure of Books, and Rebecca Mead's My Life in Middlemarch. An accompanying bibliographic essay is periodically updated and available at Hallock's website: www.roadcourse.us.
